

Common graphs with high chromatic number

Daniel Král' (Masaryk University)

A graph G is common if the random 2-coloring of edges of the complete graph asymptotically minimizes the number of monochromatic copies of G . We establish the existence of common graphs with arbitrarily large chromatic number.

The talk is based on joint work with Jan Volec and Fan Wei.